Volunteers will be walking for United Way

Staff Report

MORGANFIELD - Every year in October, United Way volunteers in Union County organize a Commercial and Professional Division Walk to raise money for United Way. This year organizers will be holding that walk on Friday, October 17 from 8 a.m. until noon. Shannon Clements and Nicole Welden will once again take the lead in this endeavor.

United Way Walkers will be moving in pairs around Morganfield, Sturgis, Uniontown, and Waverly visiting businesses and professional offices to ask for an investment in the work of United Way. Last year, United Way Walkers raised over $2,700 but this year, they have set a challenge goal of $3,500 to raise in the one-day event.

This spring, United Way volunteers invested in 27 local agencies that delivered direct health and human services to the people of Union County. Nicole Welden said, "This effort helps an unbelievable number of local people! I wish more people would participate!" Shannon Clements agreed, "This is all about people in Union County helping one another!"

nizers of the annual Business Walk remind businesses that walkers will come to their doors that morning with United Way information and walkers will be wearing Live United shirts. 2014 Campaign Chair and United Way board member, Garrick Thompson said, "Every dollar helps local people. Please have your investment ready!"

UCHS students attend Career Days

Special to The Advocate

MURRAY - The Union County High School Manufacturing and Electricity Classes attended the Kentucky Construction Career Days event at William Cherry Exposition Center on Murray State University Campus on September 18.

Taking students to the field classroom and letting them have hands-on experiences without adding risk to a jobsite is tricky but one way is through Construction Careers Days which consist of hands-on activity for students and teachers who attend and provides an opportunity for students to meet people who have made a career in construction related trades.

"Some of our students are not sure what all the career opportunities are; so, taking them to the Career Days is an opportunity where they can see and hear - which builds excitement," said UCHS Manufacturing Instructor Tom Berry. "For the fourth year in a row, the Construction Career Days has been an excellent opportunity for our high school students to learn about rewarding careers in the commercial, and highway construction industry."

Students attending were: Nick Berry, Kyson Brown, Jamie Decker, Ronnie Duvall, Christian Fenwick, Christian Flint, Kyle Hogge, Gary Hollis, Kevin Jones, Bryce Mcguire, Travis Morse, Timothy Pike, Billy Joe Eaton, Will Holbrook, Ezekiel Teehan, Gage Lanston, Noah Lamb, Conner McGlothlin, Justin Russelburg, Bryce Chandler, Wade Moore, Gage Nally, Isaiah Garib, William Collins, Ian Wolfe, Darrian Miller, Pierce Wolfe, Heath Luttrell, Savannah Gomez, and Katyelyn Hansborough.
