

Salvation Army

A mom of three was laid off from work once the pandemic began. She has not received any unemployment and finally started a job after seven months of looking for work. Two days into her new job she came home to find a disconnect notice from her utility company. She called us in panic mode and we were able to assist her to keep her lights on and heat on for her children. She said she has never had to ask for help before, but was glad that we were there to assist.
